RELEVANT PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

9/05 - present; Professor; Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of Delaware, Newark, DE

Duties including teaching undergraduate and graduate level courses in Criminology and Sociology, research, and service to the profession, university and community. I also advise students, both graduates and undergraduates, and sit on Master's Theses and Doctoral Dissertation Committees. In the Fall of 2005, I developed an innovative undergraduate service learning class titled "Drugs and the Criminal Justice System," which includes about 15 UD students and 15 prison inmates taking classes as peers. This class is part of the national Inside-Out Prison Exchange program, and has been a rousing success by all estimates. It became part of the regular course offerings through the Department in Fall, 2006.

10/94 - present; Senior Scientist; Center for Drug and Alcohol Studies, University of Delaware, Newark, DE

My primary role is to conduct or assist in the conduct of research in the drug field. I develop ideas for new research studies, prepare grant applications (for national and international grant-funding agencies), develop research study designs, implement field practices, prepare data sets, conduct analyses, present research findings at conferences, and prepare publications (including journal articles, book chapters, and reports) on study results. I have served as PI on two NIDA-funded studies: the Validity of Self-Reported Drug Use in Population Surveys and A Cross-National Study of the Youth-Drug Violence Nexus. I served as Co-Investigator on the Mid-Atlantic site of "Criminal Justice Drug Abuse Treatment Study (CJDATS-II)," and on many other funded research projects.

10/94 - 6/04; Associate Director; Center for Drug and Alcohol Studies, Univ. of Delaware, Newark, DE

This position combined both research and administration functions. As a researcher, my role was to act as a PI, Co-PI, or Project Director on current and new research investigations. This involved designing and conducting original research and secondary data analysis projects, conducting advanced statistical analyses, and presenting research findings at national and international conferences and in scholarly journals and books. I also had major responsibilities for securing new funding sources for the Center. As an administrator, I was responsible for managing most of the day-to-day activities of the Center, and I represented the Center in a variety of University, State and Federal meetings with decision making authority. I supervised a staff of about 25 professionals. I also assisted in supervising and training graduate students.

9/01 - 9/05; Associate Professor; Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of Delaware, Newark, DE

I taught undergraduate courses in the Sociology and Criminal Justice Department in my areas of expertise. I also advised students, both graduates and undergraduates, and sat on several Doctoral Dissertation Committees. This position also included a service role, and I served on the Graduate Policy Committee and Departmental Policy Committee.

8/90 - 10/94; Statistician; National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, MD

From 8/90 through 9/92, my major responsibility was to oversee the development, analysis and publication of both substantive and methodological reports generated from the National Household Survey on Drug Abuse. I was the Project Officer on the analytical portion of the survey and was responsible for overseeing the work of the contractor in conducting analysis, preparing publications for dissemination, preparing public use data tapes, and completing both methodological and statistical projects. I was also responsible for conducting secondary analysis of the survey data. The Household Survey was transferred to the newly created Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) on October 1, 1992. I continued to conduct secondary data analysis of the survey, as well as provide consultation to SAMHSA after this date. I also conducted secondary analysis of data from other drug-related surveys. The results of my research were presented at scientific conferences, in professional journals, and in reports. Beginning in 1992, I chaired an internal committee charged with overseeing and coordinating the development of the analytical and methodological reports from the DC Metropolitan Area Drug Study, which is a series of large studies designed to examine the nature and extent of drug use among all types of people residing in a single metropolitan area, with a special focus on populations who are un- or under- represented in the Household Survey. Other responsibilities included preparing grant and contract announcements; overseeing the research of recipients of federal grants/contracts; participating in the planning, conduct, and oversight of methodological studies to improve the quality of drug abuse data; providing technical assistance, consultation and policy guidance to the Institute; and assisting other agencies and scientists in the analysis and interpretation of data on drug use. I also initiated and chaired an ad hoc Criminal Justice Working Group that was formed to coordinate and develop a more rigorous research program on drugs and crime within NIDA.

9/88 - 8/90; Senior Research Associate; National Institute of Justice (NIJ), U.S. Department of Justice, Washington, DC

My primary responsibility was designing, developing and conducting in-house research projects on drugs and crime. Most of my research focused on NIJ's Drug Use Forecasting (DUF) study, an urinalysis-based study of drug use among arrestees in major U.S. cities. I initiated a major revision of the DUF questionnaire and sampling design. Most of the data analysis I conducted was directed at examining the causal relationship between self-reported drug use and that measured by urinalysis, and on treatment history and needs. I also conducted analysis comparing the DUF study with other drug use studies (i.e., the Bureau of Justice Statistics inmate surveys, and NIDA's epidemiological drug surveys). The results of my research were disseminated through published papers, agency reports, and papers presented at professional conferences. My secondary responsibility was administration--managing grants/contracts. I managed several grants in the Drugs, Alcohol and Crime program, and monitored a contract with the University of Michigan for mainframe computer support. Other responsibilities included report and technical writing; reviewing journal articles and grant applications for methodological applications and substantive content; and providing computing consultation to staff.

11/86 - 9/88; Project Coordinator; Monitoring the Future (MTF) Survey, Survey Research Center, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI

I coordinated an international epidemiological study of drug use among American high school seniors in the Department of Defense Dependents Schools (DoDDS) system. Based on a stratified random sample, approximately 3300 students in 37 high schools in 10 countries were selected to be surveyed. As the Project Coordinator, I was responsible for all phases of data collection and analysis. I was the principle liaison with the DoDDS headquarters in Washington, as well as the five DoDDS regional offices worldwide. I was also the principle liaison with the individual schools and coordinated survey arrangements within the schools. I supervised the five teams of interviewers who conducted the survey administrations, including negotiating the terms of employment, preparing the Interviewer Training Manual, and arranging travel itineraries. Duties also included participation in deriving the sampling and questionnaire design, preparation of the field budget and monitoring expenses, and coordinating the content of the final report with DoDDS officials. I co-authored the final report. I also conducted advanced statistical analyses of the data for a supplement to the final report. (The DoDDS study was a supplement to the national survey of high school seniors conducted by MTF.)

1/88 - 4/88 and 9/86 - 12/86; Teaching Assistant; Sociology Department, University of Michigan

During the 1988 Fall semester, I taught the discussion sections of a senior level Criminology course. The course focused on the criminal justice system, the prison system, victims and the fear of crime. I taught the discussion sections during the Fall semester, 1986, of a class entitled the "Social Psychology of Deviance." The course was divided into three sections: Issues in Defining and Approaching Deviance, Steps in the Official Designation and Control of Deviants, and Understanding Deviant Activities and Deviant Motives. Student's course evaluations were extremely positive, exceeding the departmental course mean in all categories.

9/85 - 11/86; Study Director; Monitoring the Future (MTF) Survey

I coordinated an epidemiological study of drug use among 7th, 9th and 12th grade students in a local school district (N=3100). The study was the U.S. pilot of an international study conducted in six countries to ascertain the feasibility of conducting a standardized international epidemiological study of student drug use. I was responsible for all phases of the study in the U.S. I negotiated the terms of the agreement and served as the principle liaison with the school district. I assisted in the training and supervised the 15 volunteer field interviewers, set and monitored the budget for the study, assisted in questionnaire design and typesetting the questionnaire on a mainframe computer, coordinated the scheduling details of the survey administrations in the four high schools and five junior high schools, edited the questionnaires, coordinated the data entry process, and participated in the field interviewing myself. I was responsible for all phases of data management, from cleaning the original data tape to statistical analysis. I prepared the report to the school district and assisted in preparing the school district's final report. I co-authored a report for the meeting of the Drug Epidemiology Expert Group of the Council of Europe's Pompidou Group outlining the steps utilized in conducting the pilot study in the U.S., in order to assist researchers in other countries in conducting their pilot studies. I also co-authored the final report to the Pompidou Group on the results of the survey.

5/84 - 9/85; Research Assistant; MTF Survey

My duties as a research assistant included statistical data analysis using intermediate level statistical techniques including tabular analysis, anova, regression, and factor analysis. I was also involved in analytic report writing. For example, I updated and edited the volume: Drugs and American High School Students, 1975-1983, which provided a detailed analysis of current and longitudinal trends in drug use among the nation's high school seniors. I was assigned to special projects such as preparation of newsletters to survey respondents, including design, content, and data analysis; analysis of the R. J. Reynolds ad based on the MRFIT study; and assisted in the preparation of professional papers (analysis, literature reviews and writing).

8/81 - 7/85; Principal; Center for Occupational and Personalized Education (COPE)/Community High School, Ann Arbor, MI

Primary duty involved the day-to-day administration of an alternative school annually serving 150-200 disenfranchised, behaviorally troubled, academically deficient, (primarily) adjudicated youth. COPE's mission is to reduce the recidivism rate of these youngsters, avoid out-of-home placement, and help them return to public school or secure employment. COPE is the longest running alternative school in the state of Michigan, and has received national recognition for the work it does with young people. I supervised a staff of ten professionals. Duties included coordinating efforts with the juvenile court, county school districts, the Department of Social Services, an onsite day treatment program, and an offsite vocational training program. Duties also included liaison work with funding agencies at the State and local level; exploring, developing, and implementing new programs; report writing and assisting in preparation of grant proposals; program evaluation; providing training, back-up and support services for the instructional and counseling staff; monitoring student progress; and representing the school to community/civic groups, public schools, professional organizations, etc.

8/78 - 8/81; Teacher/Counselor; COPE/Community High School

Primary responsibility was to provide direct services for students. Duties included individualized and small group instruction and counseling for a caseload of approximately 30 students (about 45% of my students were certified as eligible for "special education" services). I conducted individualized assessments of students including administration and interpretation of an academic and behavioral testing battery, and preparation of a treatment plan. I supervised the students on my caseload during their tenure at COPE, coordinating their educational and treatment programs, and adjusting services as necessary. I also coordinated COPE's volunteer program from 1979-81.

11/76 - 4/77; Counselor; Model Cities Program, Detroit, MI

Duties were to develop a treatment plan for methadone detoxification and provide individual counseling to a caseload of 40 individuals enrolled in a methadone treatment program. I also assisted in dispensing medication and conducting urinalysis.

2/76 - 11/76; Substitute Teacher; School Districts of Detroit, Warren, Romeo and Rochester, MI

Permanent position at an inner city high school in Detroit from 2/76 - 6/76 teaching two classes of remedial math, two classes of Pre-Algebra and a business math class.

1/75 - 2/76; Alcoholism Counselor; Humanity House of Romeo, Inc., Romeo, MI

Responsibilities included individualized assessment administration of psychological testing battery and development of treatment plan for a caseload of about 10 in a 21 day residential treatment program; individualized and group counseling; leading didactic lectures and seminars; in-service training for para-professional staff; and development of community based youth group.
